

Week 4 Group Reflection

Customer Value and Scope

After talking to our stakeholder Robin we feel confident in the scope of the application and we have a clear hierarchy of priority on the different parts of the program. We will have more information when we start coding. So far we have tried to follow the scrum methodology when planning and working on the project. This is one of our group goals. We as a group think that it's fun working on the project which also is one of our ambitions. Making user stories has helped us divide the projects into smaller parts, this has been beneficial since it makes planning easier. It has also helped us focus on specific tasks and made sure everyone was on the same page. Furthermore it has given us a clear structure that makes our future planning easier.

Social Contract and Effort

We have had good communication and everyone takes responsibility for doing their part of the project.

The changes we want to make to the next week is that we should plan our meetings to be a bit longer to allow more time for discussion and make clearer agendas and planning the meetings better. We also want to add a meeting every friday 13:00 - 14:30 dedicated to making the team reflection.

We have spent about 12h on meetings this week + work on our own time. Since a lot of planning is required in the beginning this is not surprising and we are expecting the amount of hours of meetings per week will be reduced as the project moves forward.
